DIDSBURY BRANCH

T. W. Cuncannon, Manager
Carstairs Branch—E. D. MacGregor, Mgr.

N. T. McClain of Calgary, a former resident of Didsbury was a visitor in town on Monday. It is four years ago since Mac was here and he sees quite a change in every way since he was here last.

The Carstairs Journal has just issued an Industrial number that is a credit to the town of Carstairs as well as to W. Lister the publisher. It contains a good write-up of Carstairs and district and also some very fine half tone photographs.

A Women's Institute meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. D. Irwin on Thursday, July 17th. All the ladies of the community are cordially invited to be present. Programme: "How to keep well and live long," paper by Mrs. Stark. A demonstration by Mrs. Geo. Lisselier, Mrs. A. Hunsperger and Mrs. J. V. Berscht

AROUND THE TOWN

To-day is circus day.

Parker Reed left for Edmonton on Monday on a business trip.

Mrs. J. Huget of Trochu is visiting friends in town for a few weeks.

Ross Shantz returned from his homestead near Alaskan on Monday.

Norman Weicker left for Vancouver, B. C., last week on a business trip.

J. L. Beane of Lacombe, who has been visiting at Neapolis, left on Friday last for Calgary.

Walter Reitzel of the Union Bank, Cochrane, was visiting with his parents over Sunday.

Herb. Scheidt of Kulm, N. Dakota is now staying with his brother Mr. W. J. Scheidt.

A children's meeting will be held at the Camp meeting grounds from 1.30 to 2.30 every day.

Miss E. Dolman who has been in Red Deer for some time has returned to her home west of town.

Corny Hiebert, Harold Wiegand Bert. Rieber and Bert. Cressman left on Monday for a week's camping along the little Red Deer river.

H. J. Hoesent of Red Deer was a visitor here for a few days last week visiting with his daughter Mrs. L. C. Newcom.

Again there was no council meeting on Monday night because of the absence of enough Councillors to form a quorum.

Church of England services will be held in the church on Wednesday, July 16th, at 8.30 p.m. Rev. Mr. Church of Olds will conduct the services. Everybody welcome.

B. P. Dick and his son came down from Edmonton on Friday night last on a business trip. They are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Ryckman of east Didsbury.

Mr. M. Cressman and family of Stavelly, Alta., was visiting relatives and friends in the district over the week end. Milo is now a J. P. and Councillor for the town of Stavelly.

Mountain View Municipal Council held a meeting at the office of the Sec. Fred. J. E. Stauffer, Didsbury, last week but very little business of importance except paying bills was transacted.

Crossfield will hold their sports day on July 14th. A good programme of sports and other events will be run off and those who take in the sports are promised a good time.

A. F. Covits has been appointed Superintendent of the hail adjusting staff of the Security & Insurance Co. of Alberta. This is an advanced step for Mr. Covits who is reported as one of the best hail adjusters in the province.

Walter Durrer shipped his twelve boats to Gull lake, west of Lacombe on Monday. He intends going into the boating business at the lake side which is becoming a very popular summer resort for the people of the north country.

The W.O.T.U. will hold their regular monthly meeting a week from next Monday, on the 21st instead of the 14th, owing to other business in the Mennonite church. All ladies are invited to attend.

Mrs. Harry Ritter, sister of Mrs. E. G. Reitzel, and Miss Tena Cress and Miss Wideman all of St. Jacob Ont., and Mrs. Fred. K. Matosh of Elmira, Ont., returned home after visiting for a month with Mr. and Mrs. Reitzel.

Sharon W. Dugdale & Co. is a new firm which has started in Didsbury. They will handle all kinds of produce and act as brokerage and commission agents also real estate, loans and insurance.

The many friends of Miss Flossie Gibson will be glad to hear that she was brought home from the Calgary hospital on Monday afternoon much improved in health but still very weak after her severe operation. It is to be hoped that she will continue to regain her health.

W. Traub of Regina is a visitor at the Camp meeting. Mr. Traub is suffering from spinal disease which is the result of a fall which he received when he was a resident of Didsbury some years ago, but which has only recently developed. His many friends in the district will wish him a speedy recovery.

Some excellent pictures were shown at the Bijou theatre on Monday and Tuesday nights "Resurrection" Tolstoy's drama played by Blanche Walsh and "The Palace of Flames" by Zacconi were the pictures. Unfortunately there was a poor attendance for such first class pictures and the management of the house says he will have to discontinue bringing in these high class productions unless he receives better support.

103,000 people attended the Calgary Fair this year, an increase of 4,235 over last year. It is expected that the management will be able to clear off their last year's deficit and also have a little left in the treasury this year. It does not look as though money is so tight after all.

H. W. Chambers, who was the lay delegate from Knox Presbyterian church, Didsbury, at the recent big convention of the Canadian Presbyterian church in Canada held at Toronto, gave a splendid address in Knox church on the proceedings of the convention on Sunday night last to an interested audience. Rev. Mr. Beecroft who is supplying for Rev. D. H. Marshall also sang a solo that was greatly appreciated by those present.

AGONIES OF GALL STONES

SANOL IS THE ONLY RELIABLE
AND RAPID CURE FOR THIS
Painful and Dangerous Disease

There are hundreds of sufferers from Gall Stones who will be glad to know of the great results being derived from the use of Sanol; the remedy that is safe, sure and remarkably rapid in its action. It removes the necessity of an operation; relief comes promptly; the stones being dissolved or passed off in the stool without danger to the patient and without pain.

We have many testimonials from people who have thus been cured. We are able to give names and addresses of numbers of these, and will gladly do so to all who enquire.

The following from the letter of a well-known Toronto gentleman: "Replying to your letter, I followed your instructions, and purchased two bottles of SANOL. You might send me as much of the mixture as I need. If I can, in any way help the sale of SANOL, and by doing so help some other unfortunate, I will be only too pleased to do so. I consider it the best remedy I have." SANOL is made only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man.

For sale at the leading Druggists.

Everett, aged 4, was commenting upon the teams which were passing on the street. There goes a mule team, Auntie, he cried. Do you know the difference between a horse and a mule? asked Auntie, much amused. Of course, he replied, a horse has a hair tail, and a mule has a meat tail.

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMANS' LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements
Worth Reading.

White Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. I recommend your Compound highly and do all I can to advertise it as a genuine woman's medicine."—Mrs. SYLVESTER MANNING, White Oak, Ontario.

The Case of Mrs. Kirilin.
Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRILIN, 353 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Effects of a Smile

A professor in one of our famous Universities has suggested a chair of smiling and a course in good-fellowship.

We have courses in decorum and courses in composure and courses in the direction of energy. Then what reason is there against inaugurating a course in optimism? Why should not our young people be taught to think along the path of sunshine, to look for the brightness in life in a scientific, methodical way?

Too much of the present-day learning is inclined to make gloomy people of us. Smiling, which is a sort of banner of optimism, has too long been the uncertain matter of temperament instead of a reliable habit of life.

As a rule, the majority of persons are attracted to others who smile easily. The smilers succeed in business so that success is often said to be the cause of their smiling when perhaps it is the opposite which is true.

They seem to radiate happiness and optimism, and we say their paths lie in pleasant places.

But maybe they lighted the paths with their own smiles first.

There must be a way in which thought can be brushed up with light touches. Athletics teach the man to control his temper; the gymnasium braces up his muscles; a course in ethics sets his face toward the moral standard. There surely is a place for a course in smiling.

And there is no reason why it should not come into the medical department for smiles make light hearts, light hearts aid digestion, and digestion is the root of health.

Ask for Minard's and take in other.

Sure Remedy

The editor of the correspondence columns had a very busy day, so busy in fact that he had to enlist the services of John, the office boy, to read out the correspondence.

What is the next query? he asked, when he was half way through the pile of letters.

Oh! said John, Constant Reader wants to know how to prevent the hairs in his moustache from falling out. What must I put down, sir?

The editor paused a moment, but only for a moment.

Well, he replied at length, very deliberately, just put down the best way to prevent the hairs from falling out is to brush them lightly apart and keep them from quarrelling!

The Bowels Must Act Healthily.

In most ailments the first care of the medical man is to see that the bowels are open and fully performing their functions. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so compounded that certain ingredients in them act on the bowels solely and they are the very best medicine available to produce healthy action of the bowels. Indeed, there is no other specific so serviceable in keeping the digestive organs in healthful action.

Wooden Leg That Won a Husband

Augustus Hare used to relate how a certain lady was wooed and won for the sake of her cork leg.

One day, not long after her marriage she was during her husband's temporary absence, urged by curiosity to open a wardrobe that had always been kept religiously fastened, and found therein, to her terror, two wooden legs, each of which were labelled with the name of a lady, carefully put away on one of the shelves.

Filled with dismay, she sought some mutual acquaintance, to whom she confided her gruesome discovery, only to be assured that, although the false limbs were indeed those of her husband's two former wives, there was no cause for alarm, for her husband who had originally wedded a one-legged lady, had been so happy in his marriage, that on her death he had vowed never to mate again save with a wife similarly circumstanced.

A short time afterwards he met a lady who fulfilled the required stipulation. Her he courted and won, even more felicitous than the first, had caused him on his beloved partner's disease, to renew his former vow, the outcome of which was his present happy union. This explanation calmed his wife's alarm, for she now recognized that the wooden legs were not only mementos of past but guarantees of future happiness.

A small town boasts a female preacher. One day while working in her study she heard a timid knock at the door.

Answering the summons, she found a young German on the steps. Good afternoon, the preacheress remarked. What do you wish?

Dei say der minister liff in dis house hey?

Yes, sir.

Yes. Well, I want me to get married.

All right; I can marry you, she said.

The lady's hair was beginning to silver, and the German glanced at it. Then without comment he hurried down the walk.

Will you come back? she called after him.

You gets no chance mit me, he answered. I don't want you; I haf got me a girl already.

MOA NOW EXTINCT

Great Bird of New Zealand Twelve Feet High

A gigantic extinct bird of New Zealand (the moa) possessed the most massive bones of the entire class of birds. The bones of its feet almost rivalled those of the ground sloth or the elephant in size. In the museum in Canterbury College, Christchurch, New Zealand, there are two specimens of the moa which measure 12 feet 3 inches in height, such remains having been found in the peat bogs of New Zealand. In the seaside sand dunes and caves were preserved the ligaments holding the bones of skeletons together, also pieces of dried skin and feathers, etc. The moa is more nearly allied in structure to emus, cassowaries and kiwis than to the ostrich. It closely resembles the kiwis except for its short beak, and for having aftershafts after its feathers.

For a long time it was hoped that in some of the backward mountainous regions of New Zealand some living specimen of the moa might be found. But the expedition of an Australian naturalist, Herr Reischek, in 1877-8 for this object, was fruitless, so that the question of the moa's extinction was considered finally settled, and it is believed to have occurred a little over 500 years ago. The fact that it was flightless—not having a trace of rudimentary wings—no doubt contributed largely to render it an easy prey to its natural enemies, including man, and thus to lead to its early extinction.

It Has Many Qualities.—The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is armed against many ills. It will cure a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat; it will reduce the swelling from a sprain, cure the most persistent sores and will speedily heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself, and can be got for a quarter of a dollar.

The nurse on duty in a hospital was giving the little ones their last meal for the day. All save one were patiently waiting their turn to be served the one in question being a rosy-cheeked convalescent who was lustily calling for her portion. The nurse was an English girl who had not yet become quite sure of her aspirates.

Are't you a little impatient, Florence, inquired the nurse, with just a tone of correction in her voice.

No, I'm not! returned Florence, promptly. I'm a little hier patient.

FROM GREAT LAKES TO THE ROCKIES

WOMEN SING THE PRAISES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Saskatchewan Lady Adds Her Testimony to What Has Already Been Said of the Great Work Dodd's Kidney Pills are Doing.

Caesarville, Sask. (Special).—The scarcity of female help in a new country subjects the women of the prairie to unusual strain, and careful observation has established the fact that this strain first makes itself felt in the kidneys. For this reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are making an enviable reputation from the Great Lakes to the foothills of the Rockies.

Everywhere you will find women singing the praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy that has banished their pains and weariness, and brought them back to health. Among the many is Mrs. Edgar Cowen, an estimable lady of this place.

"I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills very beneficial," Mrs. Cowen states. "If anything I can say will help any sufferer I am glad to add my testimony to what has already been said."

The kidneys strain all the refuse material out of the blood. If they are out of order this refuse remains in the blood, and becomes poison. That's why sound kidneys mean pure blood and good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills make sound kidneys.

The Chicken Thief

Some fellows are so corrupt that in the most innocent proposition they see corruption. They resemble old Wash White.

There was once a missionary out West trying to educate the ignorant mountaineers, and he was hard put to it for a suitable schoolroom. He heard one day of an abandoned henhouse that, being unusually roomy and light, would serve his turn. So he said to Wash White, an aged local:

Wash, my man, here's a tip for you, and I want you to go up this afternoon and clean out that old henhouse behind McVade's barn.

Old Wash, with a look of astonishment, pocketed the tip.

But surely, boss, he said, surely you wouldn't clean out a hen-house in the daytime!

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house

And now, my dear General, come and sit-by me and tell me all the scandal that's happened while I've been away.

Well, really, Mrs. Mallecho, er—you see—er—the fact is, that while you've been away there's been no scandal.

The mean annual rainfall of the entire globe is thirty-six inches.

Flight of the Wild Geese

There can be no more impressive sight than a straining line of wild geese moving in the clear air with steady strokes, their rigid necks pointing to their northern summer home, their outlines slowly diminishing until, as a row of floating dots, they vanish in the uncertain distance.

As they scan the continent in their northward sweep the feeble efforts that dot it here and there with cities must seem to them helpless presumption. They call in the joy of their strength, and the poor prisoners of gravitation fancy that the resonant tones from the vast, airy dome is a special message to their own little worlds. More impressive than this voice of the open day or the sight of the vigorous and steady forms coursing the air is the sonorous mingling of cries in the starry dome when the lofty way of travellers is concealed by the enshrouding night.

Through the baffling mystery of countless points of light from immeasurable distances comes the more appealing mystery of the near but invisible wanderers, halting from their uncharted course. Fancy pictures the geometrical accuracy of the passing flock. Their course can be followed by the tireless repetition of their resonant calls. Even their number can be guessed by the multitude of voices.

Meant What He Said

The Stranger—When you get time drop in and see me and I'll give you some honest work.

Blinkey the Peterman—When I git time! Huh! De jury jus' now give me 'tree years' time for burglary.

The Stranger—So I thought. I'm warden of the penitentiary

A Serious Matter

The poets say that in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

Lightly, eh? Lightly! With rent, gas, clothes and the high cost of living to consider. It is easy to see that poets are irresponsible mutts.

But for the mistakes made by great men and women history would be such a bore.

Bodily Health Affects Character

Character, as well as success in life, depends very largely on the condition of the health. You cannot imagine a sufferer from indigestion being cheerful in disposition. Nor do you expect a person with exhausted nerves to be other than nervous, irritable, easily excited and short-tempered.

There was formerly much guesswork in the treatment of exhausted nerves, but since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proven so successful in restoring nerve force to the system there is no necessity for experimenting. Some experiments are necessary for the advance of science, but they need not be at your expense or your risk.

No one can develop good character and ability with nervous headache, indigestion and the depressing effect of an exhausted nervous system. There is always the dark cloud of nervous collapse, and some form of paralysis to look forward to.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is not a "quick cure"—no sedatives to lull the patient in the delusion that his pains are disappearing, no narcotic or injurious stimulants to exhilarate him temporarily at the future expense of health.

This food cure positively forms new, rich blood and builds up in the most natural way the starved and worn-out nerves.

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies, — your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is shown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, leading to constipated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics. They give but temporary relief. They often aggravate the real trouble. They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels. They don't purge, grip, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies. They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust.

They act toward relieving constipation, and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associated organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction. We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes. 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Orderlies are not sold by all drug stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at the Rexall Stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:

SUBSCRIPTION: One Dollar per year in advance. All arrearages of six months or more will be at the rate of $1.50 per year. To U. S. $1.50 per year. Advertising rates quoted on application.

H. E. OSMOND, Proprietor.

THE fire laddies again did good work for the town last week and we should congratulate ourselves because we have such a bunch of live wires on the brigade, but congratulations to the brigade do not buy them any clothing they may get spoiled by fire or chemicals, nor does it encourage them a great deal to turn out in the middle of the night or very early morning to extinguish a blaze. Some scheme of allowing the brigade a certain sum for each call or pay for any damage that they may receive to clothing should be arranged, and the Fire Chief should also get a small salary for his services. No doubt those responsible will take up this matter if it is called to their attention by the ratepayers.

As indicated in another part of this issue, a reduction on express rates has gone into effect in Western Canada. It would be well that the retail merchants get thoroughly posted on the details of the new figures. The change will be of great benefit to the merchants, many of whom receive goods frequently by express. No doubt merchants will be able to avail themselves of the express services more than in the past, since the rates are now more favorable. The new rates will be especially of interest to dealers who have occasion to order for quick delivery goods which they may not have in stock, and for which customers may be waiting. Prompt delivery by express would enable such merchants to compete more effectively with the mail order houses. Often when customers find that the articles they want are not in the local store, they send away to the city for them, and probably even the merchant does not consider that he might as well get the articles for his customers himself, and thus give his patrons a service that will be much appreciated. Commercial.

ON Sunday night the peaceable citizens of Didsbury were very much surprised and annoyed by the shouting and unruly behaviour of a party of young fellows who made the night hideous with their boisterousness. There is six days in the week when these hoodlums can let off any excess of hot air (to use a slang phrase) or rowdyism and even then the law takes some cognizance and when it goes too far the perpetrators are punished. Didsbury has the name of being a quiet, law abiding town, and it is seldom that any comment has to be made on the actions of any of its residents or visitors but if the quiet of the Sabbath is to be violated the way it was on Sunday evening then an example must be made to put an end to such proceedings.

COMPLAINT is also being made that those who are attending the Camp meeting were annoyed on Sunday evening by some persons on the road outside of the meeting who were behaving in a very disorderly manner, and using language that was at least ungentlemanly if not worse. If these men or boys who are responsible for the trouble do not believe in the methods used at the meetings they will be thought more of if they keep away entirely. They are not compelled to go to them and they have no right to disturb other people who do believe in them. It is to be hoped that the trouble of Sunday night will not happen again and that those who were at the bottom of it will conduct themselves in a more decent way in the future, and the visitors who are with us will have more respect for them and the town as well.

Edmonton Exhibition Prize List Now Out

The prize list for the Edmonton Exhibition, August 11 to 16th, is now out. $50,000.00 is provided in purses and prizes, an amount largely in excess of last year. Perhaps the most notable increases are for cattle and swine. This year $8,400 is given for cattle, the amount last year being $5,950. The largest increases are in the Dairy breeds, which are this year placed on the same basis as the Beef breeds. For Swine, $2,350 is being given this year — last year the amount was $1,410. This year Hampshires have been added while the Duroc Jerseys, Chester Whites and Poland Chinas have been placed on the same basis as the Yorkshires, Berkshires and Tamworths. One of the special features of the Horse department is the $200 in prizes given for teams the property of a man engaged exclusively in farming, to be driven by the owner or owner's son, first prize $80, second prize $60, third $40, and fourth $20, the prizes being donated by S. H. Smith, of Edmonton, and the class being restricted to grade horses. In every department in the Show liberal increases have been made. Entries close July 28th.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

A well-read man as well as a linguist, sneered Murgatroyd in the best Pioneer manner.

I dare say I've done a bit of both. Jimmy was not aware what a linguist was, but he was conscious of few unoccupied moments in his life, and most probably he had had a look into that—under another name.

I don't know exactly in what part of Mr. Muller's room the safe is—

I do.

Murgatroyd sat up—surprised—and looked at his valet, who was pouring water into the tub with the utmost sang froid.

You do? How do you make that out?

Easily. The happy combination of spare time and a certain amount of curiosity.

Have you been into that room?

Rather! And Mr. Jordan metaphorically. Not actually, winked the other eye.

You have been into Mr. Muller's room at Highdene? Who took you?

It was within a walk, replied Jimmy demurely.

Don't be silly! Who showed you over?

There was no one specially handy; so I just took the opportunity and walked round. I saw you, but perhaps you were too much taken up with your talk to notice me?

You don't mean to say you were at Highdene, when I was there? You did not—take anything away?

Honor bright. Only some mud out of the ditch—moat they call it, I believe—round the house.

You don't mean to say you walked in at the front door? Why any one might have seen you.

Bless you, no; I went through the dining-room window. There is a place to pass glasses through between the dining-room and smoke-rooms—rather a handy idea, seems to me. It was dark the dining room side. I looked through and saw you two well enough and heard every word you said. Muller was roasting you on a spit fine; and Jimmy chuckled.

Well, if you have found your way once, I suppose you can manage to do it again.

I should rather think so. That Muller's a clever chap in his own line but he's a lot to learn in mine, I can tell you.

What is his line?

Finding out other folk's business, I expect.

That's a new kind of trade.

Not at all. It's the same as mine. Only I take things; he takes notions.

ARMS AND FACE VERY MUCH DISFIGURED

Skin Cracked and Bled, Causing Much Pain. Was Getting Discouraged. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Soothed Right Away. Used Them Four Weeks. Has Not Been Bothered Since.

8 Hunter St., Danville, Toronto, Ontario.—"My little girl was troubled with cracked arms and face from the time she was born. They were certainly very much disfigured. The skin was sensitive and cracked and bled, causing much pain by smearing. When healing a little it took the form of itching. The trouble made her very cross. When she cried the tears would make it smart and cause more pain. I tried cold cream, ———— and it got better only to break out again when exposed to the air. She suffered for over three years and I was getting discouraged when I read of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for samples. Cuticura Ointment seemed to soothe it right away, where other ointments made it burn, so I bought some more. I used them for four weeks and she has not been bothered since. Her face and arms have never had a mark since, in fact her complexion is wonderfully clear." (Signed) Mrs. Underhill, Dec. 11, 1911.

Cuticura Soap is best for skin and hair because of its extreme purity, delicate yet effective emollient properties, and refreshing fragrance. It costs but little more than ordinary soaps, wears to a wafer and gives comfort and satisfaction every moment of its use, for toilet, bath and nursery. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25-p. Skin Book. Address post card Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 49D, Boston, U. S. A.

Notions pay best.

I don't understand what you mean. Highdene is a nice out-of-the-way place isn't it? To-morrow is just the spot any one would choose who had retired from business and liked sport, and wanted to live in the country.

You might just as well say: It's a fine day. What have Tormouth and Highdene got to do with it?

A good deal, I should say, replied Mr. Jordan, with the same imperturbable good humor. Now if it was Plymouth, or Pembroke, or even London, why, there might be tender inquiries about Mr. Muller, and the police—a nasty interfering lot of men. Slops they are—they might get making inquiries, and Mr. Muller might lose his game of whist, and miss his hunting and fishing for a while, you know.

Murgatroyd was mystified.

Not smuggling, you don't mean?

Jordan laughed—the low, noiseless laugh of the man who was habitually wary.

Smuggling! That don't pay now-a-days—not that all Mr. Muller's stuff in his cellar has paid duty. But that's not what I mean.

I think I shall be able to tell you more before long. Perhaps you'd better wait, sir. Bide-a-wee, as the song says, which always touches my heart. I've a feeling 'eart, sir, although you might not think it—from a gentleman of my profession.

I shouldn't be surprised. Well, I will wait. Only remember, I have not got too much time. Those papers are wanted sharp, or they are no good.

I won't keep you waiting. I think our visit to Tormouth was just in the nick of time. But lor, bless you, sir, what a happy thought that was of your bringing me. Why, you wouldn't have been no manner of use without me.

Jordan surveyed his employer with gentle compassion.

Murgatroyd did not know whether to be angry or amused. Jimmy had such an insufferable good opinion of himself.

Your methods and mine, Jimmy, are not quite similar.

Your method would never get inside the lock of Mark Muller's mind, put in Jimmy with emphasis, using a professional metaphor. Now I can turn him inside out—like this waistcoat, suiting the action to the words; for Jordan was engaged in folding and putting away the left-off clothes of the previous night.

Now I think we're all ready, sir; and Jordan vanished.

Murgatroyd proceeded to dress leisurely, his thoughts running all the time on the foregoing conversation; but he was no nearer finding a satisfactory solution when he went down to find his breakfast in the coffee-room at the Falcon.

On the table lay a couple of letters. Murgatroyd read them propped up before him on the sugar-basin while eating his eggs and bacon. He was the sole occupant of the coffee-room.

One was from Sir Richard Hanley. It had only 'London' at the top and the date, and was signed with the single initial 'H'; but the attempt had been made to disguise the handwriting. It was too characteristic not to be recognized at a glance. The strong, firm, capable man spoke in its every line.

Dear Mr. Murgatroyd, The business you are about presses for immediate determination one way or the other. The House meets on Tuesday; and I hear, on the best authority, that notice of amendment to the Address, in answer to Her Majesty's Speech from the Throne, will be moved immediately by Mr. Thompson-Halliday, with reference to the T.A. Boundary question. The Amendment will take the form of regretting the attitude the Government has taken up in this matter and recommending arbitration. I need hardly say, that the main reason the Government, acting by my advice and on my sole responsibility, has taken the strong course you have so ably supported in the Pioneer, has been the knowledge of the existence of the absolutely conclusive documents which you are now trying to secure for us. We should have been morall; right under any circumstances in coming to the decision we did; but its legal proof is not clear otherwise, and the latter in diplomatic matters is the only sheet-anchor. Mr. Thompson-Halliday, although as you are aware only a private member, will be supported by the whole strength of the parties in the Opposition; but, of course, our own side is strong enough to resist the attack if we can satisfy our supporters that we are in the right. In any case the Amendment will not be carried—our majority is too great for that. But a comparatively narrow division would imply a vote of censure on myself; and I should resign. The Government would be weakened for a time; but would go on. The nation never understands foreign policy; and we all forget easily what we learn by rote. But my career will be over all the same. I should not regret this in many ways; but I should regret retirement from the public service as the outcome of acknowledged failure. I am acting for the good of my country. It and I are in the right. But the proof? I regret your failure hitherto; I ask for redoubled efforts to be exercised without delay. I know exactly what would suit you on your return—but my power may be gone.

My daughter desires to be very kindly remembered.

I am, faithfully yours, 'H.'

over two sentences in the letter as he drank his coffee. One was: I know exactly what would suit you; the other: My daughter desires to be very kindly remembered. The writer had certainly not coupled them intentionally; but the alliance formed itself unbidden in the journalist's brain.

Well, it all depends now, he mused, on friend Jordan. Something attracted him to the envelope. He took it up and looked at it carefully.

There were indications that it had been opened and stuck down again. A thought flashed through his brain. The coffee-room waiter was a German. Could there be any connection between the man and Muller?

Murgatroyd strode across the room to the bell. The waiter, who served one or two private rooms as well as the coffee-room, had not been in since he brought in the breakfast and handed the letters.

Murgatroyd laid his hand on the bell, but did not ring it. Instead he went back to his place. He had hardly done so when the waiter bustled in, napkin on arm, and proceeded to hand some fresh toast. Murgatroyd felt that the man was watching him with his furtive twinkling eyes—he had not noticed before what a shifting, uncertain face it was—but a journalist as a rule knows how to take care of himself when being physically interrogated. He opened the second letter, and the waiter retired.

Mathematician Figures Out the Food Question

If anyone requires a clear head it is a teacher of mathematics. He must reason in the abstract as it were and full concentration of mind is necessary if correct results are to be forthcoming.

A man writes: "I am a teacher of mathematics and for 15 years prior to four years ago. I either took a lunch composed of cold sandwiches, pickles, etc., to school or hurried home and quickly ate a hot dinner."

"The result was that I went to my afternoon work feeling heavy, dull of brain and generally out of sorts. Finally I learned about Grape-Nuts food and began to use it for my noon-day lunch."

From the first I experienced a great change for the better. The heavy, unpleasant feeling and sour stomach caused by the former diet disappeared. The drowsy languor and disinclination to work soon gave way to a brightness and vim in my afternoon work, a feeling entirely new to me.

"My brain responds promptly to the requirements put upon it, and what is of more importance, the results have been lasting and more satisfactory, the longer I have used Grape-Nuts as a food."

My wife had been suffering from weak stomach accompanied by sick headaches nearly all her life. She is invariably relieved of these when she sticks to Grape-Nuts, either eaten dry or with milk. Her stomach has gradually grown stronger and her headaches less frequent since she began to eat Grape-Nuts."

Crossing Atlantic in 36 Hours

Mr. Grahame-White, the well known aviator, has announced his intention of flying across the Atlantic in thirty hours, and he hopes to undertake the trip in June or July. He is building a machine with this object, but little has leaked out so far in regard to its plan of construction. It is known, however, that it will carry four engines, arranged in independent pairs, each rated at 250 horse-power.

His object is to produce an aeroplane with power to make a tremendous life without reducing its speed. It is understood that his machine will be a biplane, owing to the superior weight-carrying properties of this particular type of machine.

Roughly speaking, the distance between the coast of England and that of America is some 3,000 miles, so that in order to accomplish his journey within the stated time, he will have to travel continuously at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

Extraordinary Longevity

The inundation of 1701, which swept away a great part of the old Tyne Bridge, Newcastle, was long remembered and alluded to with emphasis as 'the flood.'

On one occasion Mr. Adam Thompson was put into the witness box at the assizes. The counsel, asking his name, received for answer:

Adam, sir—Adam Thompson. Where do you live?

At Paradise, sir. Paradise is a village about a mile and a half west of Newcastle.

And how long have you dwelt in Paradise? continued the barrister.

Ever since the flood, was the reply, made in all simplicity and with no intention to raise a laugh.

It is given to few ministers to meet with the experience which befell one suburban reverend gentleman a short time ago. He was engaged to marry a couple who were what is described as middle-aged, and when that part of the ceremony where the contracting parties have to join hands arrived there was a hitch. The pastor repeated the order to join hands, and still it was not obeyed. In a louder tone of voice the instruction was again given, without the desired result.

Minster, said the bridegroom, in a tone heard over a considerable part of the sacred edifice, we can't do that, as we've lost our hands, and have only hooks.

Then join hooks, directed the officiating clergyman. There was a metallic click as the two iron hooks were united, and the service proceeded.

Don't Look Old Before Your Time

That hunched, so common among women, brings with it the sunken chest, the headache, tired muscles, crows' feet, and soon the youthful body is no more youthful in appearance—and all because of lack of attention.

There is no reason why you should be so unfortunate, when you have at your disposal a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—recommended for over 20 years as a remedy for almost all ailments peculiar to women. We have shown thousands of testimonials as to the accumulation of 40 years—testifying to its effectiveness. Neither narcotics nor alcohol are to be found in this famous prescription. It regulates irregularities, corrects displacements, cures nervous prostration, builds up nerves, brings about perfect health. Sold by dealers in medicines, in liquid or tablet form.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Advice, newly revised, 32-page edition, answers hundreds of questions asked every day by women, single or married, ought to be known.

A Chase For a Wife

She Led the Chaser a Pretty Dance

By F. A. MITCHEL

There was a ring at the telephone bell at the University club, and a waiter answered the summons.

"Is Mr. Kennard in the club?"

"I'll see, sir. Hold the wire."

A messenger was sent scurrying through the apartments and found Kennard engaged in a game of poker in one of the private rooms.

"You're wanted at the telephone, sir."

Kennard went to the telephone booth and asked who had called him.

"I am Mr. Gaffney of Gaffney, Calderwood & Funk, attorneys. We have a telegram from correspondents in San Francisco announcing the death of Norman L. Kennard."

"My uncle?"

"He has bequeathed his fortune to you, but there is a condition involving a limit of time which induced our correspondent to use the telegraph instead of the mail. I would recommend you to call at our office at once since what we have to communicate is not exactly the thing to be transmitted over a telephone."

"Call a cab," said Mr. Kennard, and in ten minutes he was in Mr. Gaffney's private office, where the telegram that announced his uncle's death was shown him. It contained a brief clause of the will that, since the testator wished that his fortune should be kept together and desired his stepdaughter, Agatha Burch, to share in it, the inheritance was conditional on Kennard marrying Miss Burch. The limit of time was short, being but six weeks, and Miss Burch, who was a great traveler, was abroad.

Mr. Kennard "got busy" at once. A steamer would sail in six hours, and he spent most of this time telegraphing to learn the whereabouts of Miss Burch. Unfortunately no one knew just where to locate her. Her permanent address was Paris, from whence her mail was forwarded to her. Kennard determined to make straight for that city, where he would learn the last order given for the forwarding of mail.

During the voyage his mind was continually on the matter before him. He had never seen Miss Burch, but had heard that she had been something of a belle in San Francisco society, was pretty and of an independent and a fearless disposition. She had been abroad several times and each time had penetrated farther into barbarous countries. Indeed, it was surmised that her stepfather, who was opposed to her ramblings, had refrained from bequeathing her any part of his fortune outright since it would leave her free to continue them rather than settling down in a permanent home. She had been his sole reliance in a domestic way, and he had been bitterly opposed to this trip she had taken. She was very fond of her stepfather, but so great was her passion for visiting out of the way lands that she had promised him if he would consent to this one trip she would never go on another. When she left he was perfectly well, but soon after sickened and died, with no one to smooth his pillow except a hired nurse. The peculiar will was the result of this lamentable situation.

When Kennard reached Paris he betook himself to the branch office of a banking house in the Place Vendôme, where he learned that the last place designated for forwarding Miss Burch's mail was Vienna. At the time war had just been declared between the Balkan states and the Turks.

"For heaven's sake!" exclaimed Kennard. "I hope her mania for seeing things won't lead her to visit the theater of war. If I have to hunt for her there it will be like looking for a needle in a haystack."

Taking the first train for Vienna he had the bad luck to meet with an accident and was delayed twelve hours. On reaching Vienna he learned that Miss Burch had left four hours before his arrival. Orders had been left at the office of her hotel to forward mail to Belgrade, the capital of Serbia. There was no train for that point till evening, and he was obliged to lounge about Vienna nearly all day. When the hour for departure came he was told that owing to the unsettled conditions and the mobilization of troops there was no prospect of getting through on scheduled time. This added to his discomfort, and each day, each hour, the fear grew upon him that he might not catch the lady in time.

Kennard was delayed two days in Budapest owing to the railway equipment being used in the movement of troops and did not reach Belgrade until the end of the third day after leaving Vienna. On reaching his destination he drove hurriedly to the address

Miss Burch had left at her hotel and learned that she had taken a train for Bukharest, in Roumania.

"Great Scott!" ejaculated the pursuing man. "She's getting nearer and nearer to the fighting. Suppose she should be killed! I wonder if the will makes any provision in case of her death before I can marry her."

Before leaving America he had asked the attorney to write out such information as he might need, and now taking out the paper containing it he found the words, "A marriage as early as possible is desirable, for in case of the death of either party interested the property would go to the institutions designated."

"There's another danger," growled Kennard. "The confounded girl is going right down among a barbarous people who are killing one another right and left. She's sure to fall by the hand of some bloodthirsty Turk. However, Roumania doesn't seem to be mixed up in the affair at present, and if she will only stay there it will be all right. But time is getting short."

Then he began to think of the matter of a courtship. A girl who would be so reckless as to go down into a region where a bloody war was going on might be silly enough to refuse a fortune that was attached to a man she didn't happen to fancy. And even if she fancied him would she forego that sentimental nonsense called a courtship?

When Kennard reached Bukharest he learned that a young woman answering Miss Burch's description had gone to Sofia, in Bulgaria, but as to Miss Burch as a certainty he had lost the trail. Since he could not find her in Bukharest there seemed nothing for him to do but to go to Sofia.

On reaching the capital of Bulgaria he found everything in turmoil. Troops were being dispatched to the front, and everybody was busy forwarding supplies and munitions of war. Kennard went the rounds of the hotels and on the register of one found the name of Agatha Burch, U. S. A.

"I wish to see that lady at once," said the pursuing lover to the proprietor, pointing to the name on the book.

"That young lady? She's gone."

"Gone? Gone where?"

"Let me see what address she left for her letters. Ah, here it is! 'Forward letters with the army mail.' Now I remember—that's the American girl who organized a corps of nurses."

"She's a fool!" cried Kennard, beside himself with irritation.

"A fool! I beg your pardon, sir. The young lady made herself very much admired and beloved here. It was a noble act for her to—"

"Noble nonsense! She's demented, crazy for mingling with new and exciting scenes. There's a large fortune waiting for her in America, and if she gets killed she will lose it."

"Of course she can have no use for a fortune if she is dead, but what is that to you?"

"Why, you muttonhead! I'll lose a fortune, too, and a wife."

"It seems to me that it is you who are demented."

Well, there was nothing left for Kennard but to follow the army that had gone in the direction of Adrianople. As for the ordinary means of transportation, that was not to be thought of. So he bought a horse and, mounted, pursued his way.

There was terrible fighting between the allies and the Turks, and Kennard made no headway whatever in finding Agatha Burch, though he used every means that presented itself for reaching her. At one time he drove an army supply wagon; at another he passed himself off for a newspaper correspondent. Lastly he took a gun and marched with an infantry regiment. But here he got more than he had bargained for. The force he was with went into battle with the Turks, and he was obliged to fight.

"What folly!" he exclaimed. "This girl by her idiosyncrasy has not only endangered her life, but mine, and there's a million dollars waiting for us at home with which to see the world in a rational manner."

Suddenly Kennard was turned clear around by the force of a bullet, and his legs dropped under him. He was trampled by these behind.

"Why in thunder," he groaned, "didn't that uncle of mine leave me his fortune without sending me after such a woman? But I don't blame him for not leaving any of it to her direct. She'd use it to visit the south pole."

The last man who stepped over Kennard ground a hobnail boot in his face. This made him a sight to behold. He lost consciousness, and the next thing he knew a woman with a red cross on her arm was pouring some liquor down his throat. Kennard had seen a number of Red Cross nurses during his march, and every time he saw one he made inquiries for the nurse he wanted. He asked this one if she knew an American Red Cross nurse named Burch, and she said Miss Burch was the head of her corps of nurses. She was on the field directing the succor of the wounded. Kennard begged his informant to call her chief. She did so, but it was more than an hour before Miss Burch came.

"Are you the American who desires to see me?" she asked of the much mutilated, dirty and bloody Kennard.

"Yes."

"Well, what can I do for you?"

"Marry me."

"Marry you?"

The look of repulsion at his appearance was discouraging.

"Are you Agatha Burch?"

"Yes."

"Well, your stepfather is dead and left his fortune to me, his nephew, with the provision that I marry you within six weeks after the probate of the will."

"My goodness gracious! Suppose I refuse?"

"You get nothing; neither do I."

"How much time is left?"

"I think about a week."

"That's lucky. If I had to say 'Yes' right now I'd decline. Perhaps in a week I can get you to look like a human being. We'll see."

Within the seven days Miss Burch could see in the wounded Kennard the semblance of a good looking man, and she accepted the conditions of the will.

"That uncle of mine and your stepfather was no fool," remarked the groom after the ceremony had been performed. "I'll see that you settle down."

The Silver Lining.

"I am ruined, utterly ruined!" cried the bloated monopolist. "This new tariff bill will put me on the bread line."

"Then I congratulate you," said the passerby.

"Congratulate me?"

"Yes—on escaping the income tax. Of course, if you are worrying any about the income tax it is a sign that you do not expect to be utterly ruined, in which event I congratulate you again."

But the bloated monopolist declined to be comforted.—Brooklyn Times.

Violet Was Needed at Once.

When a certain dandy of Mobile, Ala., announced his engagement to the dinky one of his choice the congratulations that were showered upon him included a note of wonder.

"Joe," said one of these friends, "I shure is surprised. We all never thought you'd speak up. It's going on two years since you began to fool around Miss Violet."

"Dat's true," said Joe, "but de fact is, old man, I didn't lose my job until last night."—Judge.

A Sad Blow.

"I know I'm not very attractive, but I had no idea I was beginning to look old as well as plain," she said.

"But you're not."

"Yes, I am. A man offered me his seat in the street car today, and that's the first time that's happened in years."—Detroit Free Press.

Woman, the Prodder.

"Wigley takes his job too seriously. To me it looks as if he's trying to work his head off. What do you reckon is the matter with him?"

"I dunno, unless he's trying to prove to himself that he has the same chances for great success that his wife tells him he has."—St. Louis Republic.

Not Too Particular.

"No, Mr. Spooning, I can never be your bride. You are not the man of my dreams."

"Oh, you want a fairy prince or something?"

"Well, just so he has a little."—Wisconsin State Journal.

Poor Unprotected Man!

Little Sarah—P'a, there's a suffragette at the door who says she's bliking to Washington, and she wants a cold snack.

Mr. Pewee (timidly)—Heavens! And your mother is away and we are all alone in the house!—Puck.

Climbed Mount Cook.

A notable mountain ascent was made at Sydney, New Zealand, recently by Miss Du Four, of Sydney, who has in previous seasons made ascents worthy of note, including the highest peak of Mt. Cook, New Zealand. Recently she made a traverse of Mt. Cook from west to east, including all the three peaks, beginning with the lowest.

STRANGE LOSS OF MEMORY.

London Doctor Knows Cases Equal to Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Are there in actual existence cases of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?" A remarkable article in the current number of The Practitioner by Sir George Savage, lecturer on mental diseases at Guy's Hospital, seems to indicate that phenomena of dual personality approaching very nearly Stevenson's famous phantasy are occasionally discovered by those whose studies bring them in contact with the mysteries of the abnormal human mind.

The article is entitled "Automatism," which the writer defines broadly as "the condition in which complicated mental processes give rise to complicated reactions to the surroundings, which are not recollected in the ordinary waking and normal state."

Sir George divides his cases of more serious automatism into three groups. In the first there is no epilepsy, in the second fits are followed by automatic acts, and in the third replaced by them. He gives two terrible instances of the first two groups. In one a man killed his wife, in the other a mother wounded her child with a knife. Both man and woman were unconscious of what they were doing.

"In the third group," continues the writer, "we find cases like that of a certain country squire of middle age, of healthy active habits, with no hereditary history of any neuritis, who came to London to consult his solicitor on a certain Tuesday morning. The lawyer asked him to call again at three o'clock. He did not return, but finding himself near his lawyer's office some days later about half-past three, he went there, believing the day still Tuesday and that he was only half an hour late as a result of his watch having stopped. He could not believe that the hour was half-past three and the day Friday. He then recognized that he had not shaved, but he seemed to have washed, dressed and eaten regularly. He certainly had not been drinking. He could not trace where he had been or what he had done, but it is clear that there had been nothing abnormal in his conduct to lead any one to suppose him to be out of his mind."

Not the least interesting part of this extraordinary question of automatism, dual personality, loss of memory—whatever may be the correct title for each instance—is its legal aspect, and how far the author of crimes committed while in an abnormal state is amenable to the criminal law. To what extent must Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde suffer for the misdeeds of Mr. Hyde? This is Sir George Savage's view:—"I have on several occasions been asked to defend female kleptomaniacs on the plea of unconsciousness, but I have generally declined although I admit it is possible for thieving, adroitly done and with apparent endeavor of concealment, to follow an epileptic seizure."

Another famous mental specialist, asked his views on this point, said:—"Serious crimes as well as petty thefts can, of course, be quite unconsciously committed and no memory of what has been done may be retained. This was a theory in the notorious, 'Jack the Ripper' cases."

"And Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde? Do they—or does he—exist?"

"I have known of cases so extraordinary," was the reply, "that the actual physical appearance of the patient is different during his period of aberration. I have known a physically sound and normal man to develop paralysis of an arm or some other limb, or alteration of facial expression in sympathy with the abnormalities of his mind."

Saved by His Pony.

One of Mr. Harry Lauder's pet projects is to better the lot of the pit pony, and there is quite a romantic story behind this humanitarian principle.

In his early days he was a pony driver in a Scotch coal mine. He was driving it through one of the galleries when suddenly the pony pulled up. Though he urged it forward, it refused to move, and the next moment there was a terrible roar caused by a fall of rock on the very spot where he would have been had not the pony refused to move. The animal had heard the low rumble of the moving rock which young Lauder had failed to detect, and but for the pony he would have been crushed to death. So overcome was he by his narrow escape that he flung his arms round the animal and kissed it. "And the poor beastie," says Lauder, "looked at me as if he understood, and forgave me for whipping him."

Disinterested Affection.

He—Darling, you must want me to give you something or you wouldn't be so sweet and gentle to-day. She—On the contrary, I don't want anything at all. It's only for the dress-maker.

There Yet.

Scott—My wife's mother has visited us only once in five years. Mott—That isn't bad. When do you expect her to pay her second visit? Scott—Oh, she hasn't got through her first yet.

Sincerity.

When there is perfect sincerity—when every man is true to himself, when every one strives to realize what he thinks the highest rectitude—then must all things prosper.—Herbert Spencer.

HE WILL GO TO BISLEY

MAJOR SIMMOND IS ADJUTANT OF CANADIAN TEAM

Halifax Officer Is a Member of the Sixty-Sixth Regiment and Is a Leading Rifle Shot Among the Marksmen of the Dominion—Has Worked Hard in Behalf of Higher Class Sharpshooting.

Major R. B. Simmond, of Halifax, N.S., has been appointed adjutant of the Canadian Bisley team for 1913. He was commissioned a lieutenant in his regiment in 1898 and promoted a captain in 1901 and a major January 22, 1913.

Major Simmond has taken a deep interest in rifle shooting for a number of years and is a past president of the Nova Scotia Rifle Association. He has been a frequent attendant at the meetings of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meets here and holds the officers' cup as the best shot among the officers of his own regiment, the 66th of Halifax. He has labored strenuously to promote the cause of rifle shooting in his native province and was a member of the 66th rifle team which won the Harold L. Borden team match in Ottawa last year at the Dominion Rifle Association meet, making a team total of 201 points out of a possible 210. Major Simmond himself scoring a possible.

Major Simmond is one of the most efficient officers of the Garrison City militia and Nova Scotia has certainly an able representative on the Bisley team of this year in this popular officer. The 66th Regiment has also two other notable shots, Sergt. Armstrong, who was on the Bisley team of 1912 and who captured the Daily Graphic cup and also shot for first place in the Prince of Wales prize, and Sergt. Parker, who is on the team this year and will accompany Major Simmond to Bisley.

Appreciated Brevity.

Dr. Abernethy, the famous Scotch surgeon, was a man of few words, but he once met his match—in a woman. She called at his office in Edinburgh one day and showed a hand badly inflamed and swollen, when the following dialogue, opened by the doctor, took place:

"Burn?"

"Bruise."

"Poultice."

The next day the woman called again, and the dialogue was as follows:

"Better?"

"Worse."

"More poultice."

Two days later the woman made another call, and this conversation occurred:

"Better?"

"Well, Fee?"

"Nothing!" exclaimed the doctor.

"Most sensible woman I ever met."

Auto Travels Through Water.

In order to meet with the rigid requirements of some of the British Dominions in respect to motor cars which can be taken anywhere and everywhere an English manufacturer has brought out a model which can be driven for miles through water four feet and even five feet deep. All electric conduits, magneto, and batteries are protected by special insulations, and extra lengths of pipe are attached to the exhaust pipe and to the intake manifold. When a car of this type is driven through five feet of water only the tip of the radiator and the seats show above the surface.

Will Felt Suffragists.

A noninflammable envelope has been invented in England by an opponent of women's suffrage, and is likely to be put on the market soon for the benefit of those who at the present time feels qualms whenever they drop a letter in the box. The inventor suggests addressing the envelope on both sides.

Music as Aid to Work.

Sir Laurence Gomme, London, statistician and archaeologist, regards music as an aid to work. He relates that at the beginning of his official career he used to add up huge columns of figures for statistical purposes by the simple process of doing the task to a Gregorian tune, and that he was always correct in his totals.

Preserving Fence Posts

Wood-rot, in all its forms, is due to the action of fungi working under suitable air and moisture conditions. In fence posts these conditions are most favorable at or near the surface of the ground and hence it is there that decay first starts. Some woods, like the cedar and tamarack, are more resistant to fungus attack and may last, as fence posts, from eight to ten years. Unfortunately however, the supply of these woods has grown very scarce and the farmer is faced with the alternative of importing durable material at a high price or of applying preservatives to the common non-durable woods which grow in his own wood lot. As the latter alternative is not only cheaper, but also much more effective, it is of considerable economic interest to the farmer to know how these wood-preservatives are applied.

Cresote, a "dead" oil of coal tar, is perhaps the best preservative for this purpose, as it does not dissolve out of the treated wood, when in contact with moist earth. It costs from eight to fifteen cents per gallon.

There are two methods of applying the cresote but before either method can be applied it is necessary to have the posts well seasoned if the best results are desired. This seasoning is best accomplished by peeling the bark from the posts and then stacking them in loose piles in the open air for several months, so the amount of water in the wood may be reduced to the smallest percent possible.

The Brush Method consists in applying the cresote like a coat of paint to the lower portion of the post, up to a point six inches above the ground line, the cresote being first heated to one hundred and eighty degrees Fahrenheit. Two or more coats may be applied time being allowed between each application for the cresote to soak into the wood.

What is known as the Open Tank Method, while more expensive, secures deeper penetration and gives better results especially when the posts are split or checked. The cresote is heated to boiling point in a metal tank and if such is not available, a simple and effective apparatus can be made by boring two holes, about two feet apart, in the lower half of one of the staves of a watertight barrel and screwing into these holes two pieces of iron piping three to four feet long which are connected by a shorter vertical pipe with two elbow-joints, thus forming a complete circuit somewhat resembling the handle of a mug.

The barrel is then filled with enough cresote to cover both upper and lower pipe holes and a fire is kindled under the lower horizontal pipe which heats the cresote in the pipes and creates a circulation which continues until all the cresote within the barrel is at boiling-point. The posts are then placed in this boiling liquid for about five hours after which they are immediately transferred to another barrel of cresote, or else the fire is put out and they are allowed to remain in the tank until the cresote becomes thoroughly cooled.

In this process the preliminary heating drives some of the contained air out of each wood-pore, and when the posts are allowed to cool in the cresote, a partial vacuum is then created in each pore which draws the cresote into every fibre. Poplar posts, which ordinarily last but three to four years, after the above treatment will last twenty years and the same applies to all other tree species in Canada. All that is essential is thorough seasoning before treatment. Further information can be obtained on application to the Forestry Branch, Ottawa.

Highland Notes

The settlers seven miles west of Bergen held a pic-nic on the Fourth of July at Foslars and McKnight's farms. There were all kinds of sports. The steer bucking contest was won by Billy Mjolsness of Bergen. Two baseball games were won by the Highlanders; the first game the score stood 9-2, and the second 6-1; batteries Arneson and Arneson, McKnight and Arneson. A large crowd was present and a fine time is reported. A wrestling match between Harry McKnight and Helmer Lindquist after 15 minutes of fast work was declared a draw, but at first it looked like a win for McKnight.

Dysentery is always serious and often a dangerous disease, but it can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has cured it even when malignant and epidemic. For sale by all dealers.

Westcott

A good many in this vicinity took in the Calgary Fair last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flewelling and Mr. Kelly of Calgary, Mr. Flewelling's father and mother from New Brunswick, visited old friends at Westcott last Sunday.

Miss Hallett has gone to Trochu, where she intends spending her holidays.

Miss Rinehart has left for Calgary where she is going to conduct a millinery and fancy goods business.

Miss Ethel Dolman is home from Red Deer and intends spending the summer with her mother on the ranch.

Miss Rose Klinck is home from Red Deer on a visit to her parents.

Herman Miller has engaged with J. H. Brown for the summer.

John Bellamy has started building a large barn, which, when finished, will be a credit to the district.

Miss Maggie Vipond and friend left for Edmonton this week.

The Westcott sports on July 4th were a decided success. Westcott won the Tug-of-war and baseball game, while the prizes for horse races and athletic events were distributed over a considerable area. The directors were heard to express themselves in words of praise for the splendid behavior of all who were present.

A dance was held in the evening which was gotten up by the young folks present. Everybody who attended was well pleased at the clean, quiet manner in which it was conducted and also at the music supplied by the impromptu orchestra of Didsbury and Westcott players.

For soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, there is nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

Hail Insurance Bylaw Carries

The municipal hail insurance bylaw which was voted on by Mountain View Municipality No. 310 on Tuesday was carried by a big majority, the farmers evidently thinking the proposition a good one for their protection. The vote was 151 for the bylaw to 37 against, with one poll to hear from.

Beulah Mission Represented

(Contributed)

Among the many tents upon the grounds where the Camp meeting of the "Alberta Holiness Convention" is being held, is that of the "Beulah Mission" from Edmonton. Here the outside visitor is made sure of, not only a hearty welcome, but a place to lay his weary head should he require it. And he cannot miss finding it, for conspicuously placed where he who runs may read is a large sign board with "BEULAH MISSION TENT" printed in large colored letters upon it, and the text John 3:16 in the lower corner further tells that—"God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life". The following, from Edmonton, coming as representatives of the mission are, as we go to press, Sister M. A. White Brothers—W. H. Browne, Roy Minter, E. Anderson, John Cummings, William Hurst, Charles A. Case, Joseph Dunn and Jacob Miller.

Miss White who is so well known among the people of Didsbury is the matron of the "Beulah Home", an institution in connection with "Beulah Mission" (as a refuge for fallen girls and women), and is beloved by all those who come in contact with her in the "Home."

Mr. Browne is also well known amongst us, and is never tired of singing the praises of "Beulah Mission", through whose instrumentality he was saved from a life of sin. He is the author of a widely distributed pamphlet entitled "How God's Grace brought Salvation to a Drunkard" a testimony to the "Beulah Mission's" great work in Edmonton. We are always pleased to welcome representatives of the Mission to Didsbury

QUITE ENOUGH

Sir James Crichton-Brown, says the Liverpool Post, can tell a good story against his countrymen. When he was in Jamaica, some years ago, yearning for the society of "a brother Scot," he asked a colored gentleman if there were many Scotsmen to be found in the island. "Not many," replied the native; "just a few—but quite enough."

Keep your face always toward the sunshine and the shadows will follow behind you.

The Mighty Haag Shows

THURSDAY, JULY 10TH, IS CIRCUS DAY

That's the cry that stirs the heart of young and old. All manners of men feel the spirit of boyhood when flaring posters tell of the coming of the scenes that helped to bring sunshine and gladness when we were young. And the youth of today is just as eager for the fray as you were then and, perhaps, now, for who is it that outgrows a desire for that which makes the whole world young, gay and contented. One must indeed be old if he be bereft of a desire to grab the youngster by the hand and take him away to the banner bespangled lot that contains more real glory, more educational features than could be found elsewhere excepting under like conditions. See the large number of wild animals from every known clime. Then there are the clowns, famous riders from every portion of the earth, aerial acts with out number, and death-defying tricks marvellously executed. And again there is the real wild west with its wonderful assemblage of cowboys, cowgirls, broncho-busters, Indian Chiefs, stage coach drivers, fancy riders, etc., bringing to your very door reproductions of actual happenings in the west. Show them some of the things their history tells of that they may more readily comprehend the actual meaning of the hardships and terrors of the west when their forefathers dared to invade a country so wild, so terribly uninviting. Yes, sir, circus day is a big day, the biggest day in the year for those who are eager to enlighten the rising generation. The Mighty Haag shows is the only big circus contracted to appear in Didsbury this summer and the date is July 10.

A Close Call

The fire fiend again tried to get a hold in Didsbury on Thursday morning last about 5 a. m. when the house occupied by M. E. Jones on the corner of Osler street and Shantz Ave. caught fire through some unexplained cause. The fire brigade was quickly on the scene with the chemical engines after the alarm and through the good control of Fire Chief Wood and Assistant Chief Sinclair with the excellent work of the members of the fire brigade the fire was quickly controlled, and again Didsbury was saved from a serious conflagration through the hard work of the brigade and the engines. The fire started near a flue in a bedroom at the back of the house which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Robertson, brother-in-law and sister-in-law of Mr. M. E. Jones. Mr. Robertson was the first to discover the fire, which had gained good headway, and immediately proceeded to arouse the other occupants of the building and in looking after Mr. Jones' children was severely burned about the face, his eyesight being nearly destroyed by the heat and smoke. A large number of citizens gathered and took out the furniture from the lower part of the house but the furniture and bedding in the upper part was mostly destroyed by the fire. Mr. Jones had his furniture partly covered by insurance and the building which is owned by Mr. Craig, of Lacombe, was also insured, but the adjusters have not made their statement as to loss as yet. The loss on the building will amount to between four and five hundred dollars.

SECRETS OF AERIAL WARFARE

What Germany is Doing to Get Supremacy of Air

Dreadnoughts of the air will play as great a part in deciding the issue of the next war as the Dreadnoughts of the sea; and it is because they wish to impress this fact on the mind of the man in the street that certain people have been so loud in their denunciation of the War Office for paying $90,000 for an airship three years ago, and afterwards making no practical use of it. We may have a fleet of aeroplanes, they say, but we must also compete with France and Germany in the matter of airships, and judging from the extraordinary efforts which Germany is making at the present time to perfect her fleet of airships, it is obvious that she considers they are as essential as war vessels for the maintenance of her power.

In the matter of airships, Germany at the present time easily stands first in the world. They possess twenty-five dirigibles of the rigid type, and by the end of the present year will have thirty-two. And it is significant that the Zeppelin Company, which now turns out an airship every three weeks hopes to be in a position at the end of six months to double this output.

Germany pins her faith to the rigid type of airship, and considers it by far the best for war purposes. So convinced are they of this that when we tried to buy a rigid airship some time ago the German Government vetoed the order, although they allowed us to purchase a Parsival, a non rigid vessel.

Some facts regarding the capabilities of German air Dreadnoughts given by the expert already mentioned provide an illustration of their deadlines in time of war. Before an airship is accepted by the German Government it must have done a trial trip of a continuous 1,500 miles at a speed of fifty miles an hour. As a matter of fact, eighteen vessels now in commission have a range of 2,000 miles. They can carry six tons of explosives, and at the present time are practising with apparatus which can direct bombs of dynamite weighing half a ton apiece. Which means to say that a couple of these air Dreadnoughts could utterly destroy a town or army, unless they were first destroyed. In addition to explosives, however, each dirigible carries heavy quick firing guns.

Hangars capable of holding the largest air vessels are being constructed. The late types of hangars are built on turn-tables, so that there is no difficulty in docking, or taking the airship out on a strong wind. The latest type at present being constructed in Heilsand is such a turn-table hangar which sinks into a pit, so that its heavily-armored roof is flush with the ground. In addition all over Germany there are erected iron towers as anchorages.

These towers are built with revolving tops, so that the airships can ride in softly, no matter how the wind changes. The towers are built close to hydrocarbon stations.

It is interesting to note that one such tower is built on the Austrian frontier, two on the Russian, three on the French and eight on the North Sea coast—which is the British frontier. Nelson's dictum still holds good.

A certain representative of Georgia says that when he was judge of his county court a fellow was before him charged with having stolen a pair of pants—loans—they call them britches, in Georgia. There were several witnesses, but the evidence was rather meagre and the accused was acquitted. He was told that he could go, but he remained in his seat. His lawyer, to whose successful defence he owed his liberty, hinted to him that he was free to depart, but he didn't budge.

I don't want to go said the fellow. And why not? asked the lawyer. Let the witnesses go first.

Why? Why, sir, I've got on the britches I stole.

The Terror of Asthma comes like a thief in the night with its dreadful throttling, robbing its victim of breath. It seems beyond the power of human aid to relieve until one trial is made of that remarkable preparation, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Then relief comes with a rush. Life becomes worth living, and if the remedy be used persistently, the disease is put permanently to rout. Take no substitute.

A certain well-known scientist in Washington was left in charge of his family of small children, as his wife expected to be absent some hours. Upon her return in the early evening she found the house unusually quiet, and wished to know what had become of the children.

The husband explained that as they had been rather noisy he himself had put them to bed without waiting for her return.

I hope they gave you no trouble, she said.

No, replied the scientist, with the exception of the one in the cot there. He objected a good deal to my undressing him and putting him to bed.

The wife went to inspect the cot. Why, she exclaimed, that's little Sammy from next door!

Brown—The facial features plainly indicate character and disposition. In selecting your wife, were you governed by her chin?

Jones—No; but I have been ever since we married.

NEURALGIA'S BURNING PAIN CHECKED—THEN CURED

Stronger Proof of Cure Could Scarcely be Found Than This

WORST CASES CURED AT HOME

"To be really cured of Neuralgia is a marvel to me," writes Davidson E. Plummer, from Kingston. "During the six weeks Neuralgia held me in its grip I suffered agony. When I had used almost every remedy, hope fairly died within me. Twice every day the attacks would recur. Had the pain been persistent I could not have borne it. I was away out in Alberta when the attack came, and was probably not robust enough for the conditions of life in that new country. I just had to suffer, as nothing seemed to subdue that awful burning pain. But relief was coming all the same, coming thousands of miles, for some new people came in from the Maritime Provinces and they brought with them a number of the Catarrhozone Company's medicines, among which was a dozen bottles of Nerviline. Hearing of my sad plight, they sent me two bottles. At first the effect of Nerviline seemed to fluctuate. Hope would rise, then followed despair, but within twenty-four hours Nerviline's victory was assured. The first bottle cured and I am still well. The second bottle I have also used for colds, earache, toothache, sick headache and other internal disorders. I will never be without Nerviline again."

No home is either safe or complete without Nerviline. Family size bottles, 50c.; trial size, 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

A story of Mr. Pierpoint Morgan which is illustrative of the scale of his domestic affairs, reaches me, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian. My correspondent was in a London optician's shop when another customer entered, and, striding up to the counter, brusquely inquired: Can you make me another pair like that? presenting spectacles of the goggles type in tortoise shell rims and gold frames. Yes, said the optician. I can. Send them up to my place as soon as they are ready. You know who I am, were the laconic instructions given as the customer strode out of the shop as quickly as he had entered. The optician explained that that was Pierpoint Morgan. The spectacles were delivered, and my friend making inquiries in the matter, heard the end of the affair from the optician. Pierpoint Morgan returned to the shop, and speaking more effusively than on the first occasion, said: Those spectacles were very good—very satisfactory indeed. I shall want some more of them. I'm always missing my 'specs' after a change of clothes. Let me see (peering and looking down on his watchcoat as if to interrogate). I have eleven waistcoats—yes, eleven so you had better make me a dozen pairs. So a dozen tortoise shell rimmed and gold framed spectacles were supplied to the millionaire, much to the satisfaction of the optician and rim-maker, who, between them, pocketed sixty guineas.

MINARD'S LINIMENT is the only Liniment asked for at my store and the only one we keep for sale. All the people use it.

HARLIN FULTON, Pleasant Bay, C.B.

Not long ago three scientific gentlemen from an eastern institution visited a certain Montana mine. One of the men was evidently of a nervous temperament and on the ascent by means of the usual bucket he perceived signs of weakness in the rope by which the bucket was suspended.

How often, inquired he of the attendant, when the party was about half way up; how often do you change these ropes?

Oh, about every three months, carefully replied the attendant. Then he added, thoughtfully: We'll change this one to-morrow if we get up safely.

A Liberal Fee

A young lawyer whose cases were few, was asked to defend a poverty-stricken tramp accused of stealing a watch.

The lawyer pleaded with all the ardor at his command, drawing so pathetic a picture with such convincing energy that at the close of his argument the court was in tears, and even the tramp wept.

The jury deliberated but a few minutes, and then returned the verdict "Not guilty."

Then the tramp drew himself up, tears streaming down his face, as he said:

Sir, I have never heard so grand a plea. I have not cried before since I was a child. I have no money with which to reward you, but, drawing a package from the depths of his ragged clothes, here's that watch, take it and welcome.

What He Wanted to Know

Miss Gibson was very rich and Mr. Hanna was very poor. She liked him but that was all, and he was well aware of the fact. One evening he grew somewhat tender, and at last he said: You are very rich, aren't you, Helen?

Yes, Tom, replied the girl frankly; I am worth about half a million.

Will you marry me, Helen?

Oh, no, Tom, I couldn't.

I knew you wouldn't.

Then why did you ask me?

Oh, I just wanted to see how a man feels when he loses half a million.

Yes, if you're the first liar she has ever met.

PURE BLOOD MAKES HEALTH

Disorders of the Blood are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If people would realize the importance of keeping the blood rich and pure there would be less sickness. The blood is the medium through which the nourishment gained from the food reaches the different parts of the body. If the blood is impure the nourishment that reaches nerves, bone and muscle is tainted with poison and disease follows. The blood is also the medium by which the body fights off disease. If the blood is thin and watery this power of resistance to disease is weakened.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People build up the blood. They increase the ability of the body to resist disease. They strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite and cure every disease caused by thin and impure blood, and that embraces such diseases as anaemia, indigestion, neuralgia, nerve exhaustion, rheumatism, and many others. Every claim made for this medicine is amply proved by the grateful testimony of those who have been cured. Here is one instance. Mr. Jas. Sauger, Peterboro, Ont., says: "I began to be troubled with dizzy spells. These were especially noticeable in the morning on rising and were accompanied by a feeling as if my body had taken on two or three times its weight during the night. When I went out of doors everything would suddenly seem to get topsy-turvy for a few moments, and I would apparently see specks floating in front of me, and for a while I could hardly drag myself along. This feeling at first only lasted for a few minutes but as time went on the duration of the spells seemed to increase. Whilst during the day I would be suddenly attacked with dizziness compelling me to hold on to something until the feeling passed. I had in the meantime been taking various blood tonics, as I was convinced my condition was due to my blood being out of order. None of these, however, seemed to have any permanent effect. For a little while I would be fairly well, but as soon as I quit using them the attacks used to come back with renewed vigor. One day I came across an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. I soon noticed a more decided improvement than I had felt before. The dizzy spells were becoming less frequent and less violent, and by the time I had taken six boxes I was well again. From former experience I had some fears that the trouble might return, but low, four months after discontinuing the use of the pills, I have had no return of the trouble. In fact, I never felt better than I do now, and I think nothing can equal the Pills as a blood medicine."

The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An old German farmer entered the office of a wholesale druggist one morning and addressed the proprietor: Mister Becker, I haf der schmalpox—

Merciful heavens, Mr. Jacob! exclaimed Becker, as the office force scrambled over each other in their hurry to get out; don't come any nearer!

Vot's der madder mit you tellers, anyhow, quietly replied Jacobs. I say I haf der schmalpox of butter out in mine wagon vot der Mrs. Becker ordered last week already!

GILLETTS LYE EATS DIRT

Birch and Beech for Flooring

Birch and beech, on account of their cheapness, are becoming more and more popular as the supply of oak and maple decreases. This statement, taken from a bulletin soon to be issued by the Forestry Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, on the Wood-Using Industries of Ontario, is based on reports received from over twelve hundred firms, and is therefore worthy of consideration. The average wholesale price per thousand feet, board measure, given in the above bulletin for maple and oak flooring is twenty two dollars and eighty two cents and fifty five dollars and seventy eight cents, respectively. The average price for birch and beech flooring, on the other hand, is nineteen dollars and seventy one cents and twenty one dollars and seventy four cents respectively, which represents quite a saving, especially when compared with oak.

But these woods have other qualities to recommend them besides cheapness. Twenty two per cent of the flooring manufactured in Ontario is made from the wood of the black and the yellow birch, the more common white or paper birch not usually growing to a sufficient size for this purpose. Birch is a hard, strong, fine-grained, reddish-brown wood, which takes a high polish and, therefore, is very suitable for flooring. It can be stained to imitate more expensive woods, such as mahogany, cherry or walnut, and, being easily worked, it is also extensively used for furniture and interior decoration.

Beech is one of Ontario's cheapest hardwoods, the ordinary grades of lumber costing only thirteen dollars and sixty one cents per thousand feet, board measure. It frequently constitutes one tenth to one third of the cheaper grades of birch flooring, but its qualities justify its separate use, for it is strong, fine-grained and so hard that it becomes quite slippery in time. It is also used for furniture to some extent.

Of the birch and beech used in Ontario, ninety per cent of the former and ninety eight per cent of the latter are home grown. The existing supplies of these woods in Ontario are sufficient to meet a much greater demand, and as oak and maple are growing increasingly dear, it is certain that the use of birch and beech especially for flooring will soon become much more widespread.

Copies of the bulletin mentioned above can be obtained from the Forestry Branch, Ottawa.

Use Miller's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won. These powders correct the morbid conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after they come in contact with the medicine. The worms are digested by the powders and are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels. Soundness is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.

A small boy was sitting on his father's knee watching his mother as she painfully went through the very delicate operation of doing her hair in that most becoming wave effect.

The physician was giving good advice to the layman.

Don't let the little thing pass unnoticed, said the doctor. It's these little things that often turn out to be serious, if allowed to run on without attention. Even if you have a simple ailment, keep your eyes on it.

But how can I, doctor? cried the patient. I have a boil on the back of my neck.

$100.00 Reward

At some time during the evening last Sunday, at the Camp meeting, some miscreants stretched wires across the grounds and tied ropes across in front of the openings used for doors to the large tent. Had those ropes and wires not been discovered, very serious injuries might have been sustained by old people tripping and falling upon the stakes, possibly maiming them for life.

The Association, at some expense had large banners made, one having been put on the Camp grounds, and, securing the proper consent had put up another across the street leading to the grounds. Both these banners were cut down. Such dastardly deeds and wanton destruction of property should not go unpunished. Much indignation was expressed in the meeting Monday night and a cash reward of $100 was offered for the names and evidence that will secure the conviction of the person or persons guilty of such malicious conduct.

The Didsbury Baseball Club is still keeping up their winning streak and playing good ball. After the Innisfail game last week the team travelled down to the town to the south of us, Carstairs, and gave an exhibition of baseball that was an eye-opener to their former visitors.

The score, which was 12-1 in favor of Didsbury, was not close at any stage of the game, the Carstairs team making their lone score in the first innings.

The next scheduled game is between Didsbury and Crossfield at the latter town on July 18th.
